

AHDC to Receive HAND Award

Press Release

April 27, 2010

For Immediate Release

The Alexandria Housing Development Corporation (AHDC) is proud to announce that it will be a recipient of a 2010 Annual Achievement Award given by the Housing Association of Non-Profit Developers (HAND) at its Luncheon and Housing Expo on June 7th. HAND supports a community of housing providers in the Baltimore-Washington DC-Richmond corridor.

The award recognizes the innovative approach to the expansion of affordable housing that has been demonstrated by AHDC's multi-use, multi-family project, The Station at Potomac Yard.

This project, which is a model of sustainable design and construction, houses a state of the art fire station, a small neighborhood-serving retail space, and 64 units of affordable and workforce rental housing.

AHDC is a non-profit developer and owner of affordable housing focused on projects located in Alexandria, Virginia. To learn more about us and what we do go to www.housingalexandria.org.

Contact: Jim Pritchett, Executive Director, Alexandria Housing Development Corporation 703-578-1835, jpritchett@housingalexandria.org