The Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority and EYA held a ground breaking ceremony Friday morning for Alexandria Crossing, a 102-unit workforce housing and townhouse development.

Located off West Glebe Road near Mount Vernon Avenue, the project will demolish public housing apartments on the 800-block of West Glebe Road and replace them with 48 new apartments. The developers will also revamp two apartment buildings near the 3900-block of Old Dominion Boulevard and add a new apartment building and 18 for-sale houses, ten of which will be reserved for workforce housing.

The workforce units are priced from the $300,000s and the townhomes are priced from $479,900.

The development is EYA's ninth community in Alexandria. Its other local projects include Capitol Quarter in D.C. and Arts District Hyattsville in Maryland.
